

WHAT'S AT STAKE THIS ELECTION: YOUR VOTE MATTERS

The family and faith values you care most about are at risk in our State Capitol in Harrisburg, and equally important, in your local school boards and in our courts. Your voice and vote are needed to elect like-minded legislators who support the issues you care about. Visit PaFamilyVoter.com to be informed about where your candidates stand on crucial topics. Recent Attacks on Faith and Family Values in Harrisburg:

What's at Stake in the 2025 Retention Elections

Three justices of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court—Christine Donohue, Kevin Dougherty, and David Wecht—are each asking voters to give them another 10 years on the bench. Your choice is a simple “Yes” or “No” for each justice. But the impact of those choices could not be more profound.

WHAT'S AT STAKE THIS ELECTION: YOUR VOTE MATTERS

The family and faith values you care most about are at risk in our State Capitol in Harrisburg, and equally important, in your local school boards and in our courts. Your voice and vote are needed to elect like-minded legislators who support the issues you care about. Visit PaFamilyVoter.com to be informed about where your candidates stand on crucial topics. Recent Attacks on Faith and Family Values in Harrisburg:

What's at Stake in the 2025 Retention Elections

Three justices of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court—Christine Donohue, Kevin Dougherty, and David Wecht—are each asking voters to give them another 10 years on the bench. Your choice is a simple “Yes” or “No” for each justice. But the impact of those choices could not be more profound.

These are not unfamiliar names. Each of these justices has already issued rulings that shaped life, family, elections, and the limits of government power in Pennsylvania. Consider this example from their record:

Abortion: All three justices sided with the abortion industry in a case challenging Pennsylvania's longstanding ban on taxpayer funding of abortions. Justices Donohue and Wecht went further, backing the claim that there is a "right to reproductive autonomy" hidden in the Pennsylvania Constitution—something never written in our state's founding document.

This ruling has real consequences for Pennsylvanians—for your family, your church, and your community. The retention vote this November is your opportunity to hold these justices accountable.

Allegheny Reproductive Health Center v. PA Dept of Human Services

A major case now before the Commonwealth Court—Allegheny Reproductive Health Center v. PA Dept. of Human Services—seeks to force Pennsylvania taxpayers to fund elective abortions. Abortion providers like Planned Parenthood want judges to invent a "constitutional right" to abortion and mandate Medicaid funding, bypassing the will of the people and decades of pro-life protections.

At stake is whether Pennsylvanians will be compelled to subsidize abortion on demand—even up to birth. This fight shows how powerful the courts are in shaping our future. That's why the Supreme Court retention vote this November matters so much. By voting NO on all three justices, we can hold them accountable and stand for life, family, and religious freedom.

PAID FOR BY PA FAMILY COUNCIL.

These are not unfamiliar names. Each of these justices has already issued rulings that shaped life, family, elections, and the limits of government power in Pennsylvania. Consider this example from their record:

Abortion: All three justices sided with the abortion industry in a case challenging Pennsylvania's longstanding ban on taxpayer funding of abortions. Justices Donohue and Wecht went further, backing the claim that there is a "right to reproductive autonomy" hidden in the Pennsylvania Constitution—something never written in our state's founding document.

This ruling has real consequences for Pennsylvanians—for your family, your church, and your community. The retention vote this November is your opportunity to hold these justices accountable.

Allegheny Reproductive Health Center v. PA Dept of Human Services

A major case now before the Commonwealth Court—Allegheny Reproductive Health Center v. PA Dept. of Human Services—seeks to force Pennsylvania taxpayers to fund elective abortions. Abortion providers like Planned Parenthood want judges to invent a "constitutional right" to abortion and mandate Medicaid funding, bypassing the will of the people and decades of pro-life protections.

At stake is whether Pennsylvanians will be compelled to subsidize abortion on demand—even up to birth. This fight shows how powerful the courts are in shaping our future. That's why the Supreme Court retention vote this November matters so much. By voting NO on all three justices, we can hold them accountable and stand for life, family, and religious freedom.

PAID FOR BY PA FAMILY COUNCIL.